

MUSTER ROLLS OF THE TERRITORIALS IN TUDOR TIMES.

During the reigns of our Tudor Sovereigns several musters of the male population were made at various intervals, when occasion demanded it, to ascertain what military forces were available for the service of the Crown. They were made in pursuance of orders from the Sovereign and Privy Council, and there is no reference to them on the Statute Book except the Act in 1557-8* which concerns itself mostly with penalties to be inflicted on those who absented themselves. Among the Stowe MSS. in the British Museum there is a paper which gives the method of procedure in 1522, which was as follows:—The King appointed Commissioners for every hundred, and these Commissioners charged the Chief Constables of the hundred, who in their turn gave orders to the constables of each parish in the hundred to appear on a certain day with certificates in writing of the names of all the men above 16 years of age dwelling in each town, village, and hamlet. All these were to appear before the Commissioner. “furnished and appareled in their best arraye for the warre, that is to saye with bowes, arrowes, bills, harnes, or any other weapon, artillery, or harnes for the warre, which they or anye of them have.”†

It seems that from the able men between the ages of 16 and 60 a selection was made, and those so selected were drilled to some extent and put through some kind of training.

* Statutes of the Realm, Vol. IV., p. 320.

† Stowe MSS., No. 570, fol. 165.

In 1524 the County of Suffolk was returned as able to supply 2,999 archers and 7,763 billmen.* In 1573 in a certificate sent to the Privy Council, the total number of men in the county is given at 18,948 ; the able men were 8,922, the selected 2,662, carpenters, 230, smiths 259, labourers 1,671, and light horsemen 122.† Within the franchises of Bury St. Edmunds at the same date, the number of men is returned as 6,476, the able men 2,900, selected men 543, carpenters 123, smiths 132, labourers 417, light horses 54, and the armour—

Corselets ..	80	Corselets ..	80
Long bowes ..	400	Calyvers ..	100
Alman Ryvets	300	Haguebutts ..	100
Haguebutts ..	100

And the Captains were William Waldegrave, Francis Clopton, John Wincoll, William Sprynge, Robert Ashefield, Thos. Polye, Robert Jermyn, and Thomas Crofts.‡

I have not been able to find any orders of the Council giving instructions as to details of training during the reign of Henry VIII., to which period the rolls here printed refer, but no doubt they were somewhat similar to those issued in the time of Queen Elizabeth, when the long bow was giving way to the "Haguebutt"; and the following document will give some idea of what the authorities demanded of the Tudor Territorial in the way of drill.

A note of the Councelles lettres for the trayners of shott in the countie of Suffolk, 12 May, 1578.

* Calendar of Letters, Papers, Hen. viij., 1524. No. 972.

† Harleian MS. (Brit. Mus.), No. 309, fol. 169a.

‡ Ibid., fol. 171.

A contynuanche of the vewing and traynyng of the number of men before prescrybed for shott.

This traynyng to be only appoynted twice in the yere by the space of two dayes together.

The view of the hole number trayned to be in one place within the shiere if conveniently it may be ij holy dayes in Whitsun weeke and thother two dayes betweene Bartholomew and Mychelmas.

The trayners, principallie to spend their tyme in the shott with the bullett.

This order to contynue from yere to yere tyll order be taken by the Quene's maiestie or her Councell.

The burden and charge to be taxed generallie on all sorts of men valued in the subsidye booke, and not altogether of men of £V and upward in the subsidye booke.¹

Among the Egerton MSS. there is also a document which touches on the training in Elizabethan times which states that musters were to be made on Sundays and other holidays, and such working days as shall not seem unmeet until the whole may be twice general mustered within the space of two months.²

The horses, arms, and equipment generally were not supplied by the Government, but were to be found and kept by the people. The Act of Parliament of 1557-8 gives an elaborate schedule of what horses and arms were to be kept by "Noblemen, gentlemen, and temporal persons," the amount of equipment that each person was to keep being graded according to his annual income from £1,000 per annum to £10.

(1) Harleian MSS., 309, fol. 216 (Brit. Mus.).

(2) Egerton MSS. 2790, fol. 93 (Brit. Mus.).

The Muster Rolls that are extant vary a good deal as to the information they contain, some give valuations of the estates of the persons mentioned, as well as giving the arms they were to use; those that remain for Suffolk by no means cover all the hundreds, and some that exist are in a very bad state. Those given here, however, are from documents in excellent condition.
