

OBITUARY NOTICES.

MR. MONTEITH OGILVIE.

As one by one the names of deceased Members are erased from our list, we cannot but feel keenly when men of exceptional talent are removed from the Institute by death. Mr. Monteith Ogilvie, whose accomplishments were of the most varied kind, was Hon. Surgeon to the Oxford Eye Hospital. As a horticulturist he was a renowned orchid grower, and his collection at Oxford was one of the finest in England. In 1910 he was awarded a gold medal by the Royal Oxford Horticultural Society, and in 1912 he won the 100 Guinea Cup at the International Exhibition. To enumerate all the prizes and first class certificates bestowed upon him between the years 1905 and 1916 would take up more space than is available.

But it is perhaps by Mr. Ogilvie's ornithological work that he has been most widely known. He was President of the Ornithological Section of the Ashmolean Natural History Society at Oxford until 1916, and the Society was indebted to him for a series of lectures on birds generally illustrated by diagrams and skins. The following tribute is from an Oxford paper: "It can truly be said that by his premature death British ornithology has been robbed of one of its most earnest and conscientious workers."

THE REV. WILLIAM SYMONDS, M.A.

The Rev. William Symonds, who was a Member of the Council of the Suffolk Institute of Archæology and Natural History, and much respected by all who knew him, passed away on Monday, July 1st, 1918, at 10, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds. He was a son of the late Sir Thomas Symonds, G.C.B. and "took the Bachelor of Arts degree when at Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1881, and became M.A. in 1884. He was ordained deacon in 1882, and admitted to the priesthood in 1883. He was curate of St. James's, Accrington, from 1882 to 1884; vicar of Clandown, Somersetshire, from 1884 to 1886; curate of St. Andrew's, Well Street, from 1887 to 1888; vicar of Frocester, Gloucestershire, from 1888 to 1900; vicar of Sherstone with Pinkney rectory, from 1900 to 1905; missionary of St. Andrew, Sarum, from 1905 to 1909; curate of Horsley (in charge of Chavenage, Gloucestershire) from 1909 to 1910; and assistant missionary South of St. Andrew, Sarum, from 1910 to 1913, in which year he became curate of St. James's, Bury St. Edmund's, and in the following year the Bishop of Suffolk appointed him to be one of his five honorary chaplains."
